Today a field of wheat tomorrow a modern campus.

Muse, settle upon our Edwardsville Campus. From your heritage of authority and memory, inspire us in the creation of our new campus at Edwardsville as you effected the establishment of the Alton and East St. Louis centers. Recall to memory the origin of our existence as we extend our boundaries and aspire to new horizons.

foreword

The Edwardsville Campus has come a long way since its modest beginning in 1957. Today a student entering either the Alton or the East St. Louis center can major in any one of a number of programs in the six divisions of instruction.

Enrollment has doubled, resulting in overcrowded classrooms and offices. Thanks to the foresight of our administration, plans for a spacious new campus at Edwardsville will provide a remedy for this situation.

Every student is looking forward to seeing the new campus completed and wishes it were possible for construction to be finished before he graduates. Although upperclassmen will never attend any undergraduate courses at the Edwardsville Campus, and some of them will not even have an opportunity to see the campus in its final stage, a bit of their hopes and dreams will be realized when it is ready for occupation. The more fortunate underclassmen are looking forward to attending and receiving a degree from the wonderful new campus. For those who are graduated from SIU-Edwardsville, broadened horizons will be opened. But, no matter which campus he attended, any student is proud to say he was graduated from Southern Illinois University.

The most familiar view of campus is seen through a car window.

Through the hustle and bustle of everyday college life, commuting plays an important role on our campus. Whether utilizing feet, a car, bus or bicycle, a mode of commuting is necessary. Some students have convertibles, some have sports cars, some have just ordinary cars. Early each morning they take to their mode of travel, and cars line the streets—about the campus until after the late, late classes; then the streets again seem deserted.

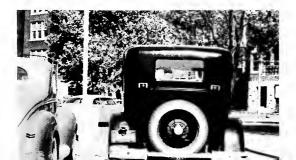

Parking is a problem for any commuter.

Only form of travel not used on campus.

A few prefer older models.

All available parking spaces are taken.

Some prefer walking to class.

Commuting by bus is possible.

Whether it be a sewing club, a worker's union or a university, any organization that is to function efficiently must have an administration to serve as head of its work. We are fortunate in this respect; the foresight and diligence of our collective leaders have resulted in a quality faculty and curricula which make it possible for us to earn a good college education. We are grateful to our administrative officers for their direction and their thoughtful consideration for our future.

the president

Delyte W. Morris came to SIU in the fall of 1948. Each year of his administration has been marked by advanced strides in academic growth, increased service to the area, and further realization of the objectives of Southern. This school year 1961-62 was an especially momentous one for President Morris: he became a grandfather for the first time; Mrs. Morris was named Southern Illinois Leader of the Year; the Morrises' younger son, Michael, completed graduation requirements at SIU in time to join his parents in a flight around the world.

Clarence W. Stephens, Vice President in charge of operations for the Edwardsville Campus, has served his Alma Mater, SIU, in several capacities. From 1958 until his appointment to Edwardsville in the summer of 1961, he was central budget officer for the University. In that position he helped with the financial planning of both campuses and became thoroughly acquainted with all University operations. In announcing the appointment of Mr. Stephens to the vice presidency, President Morris said, "He possesses a unique combination of teaching, student personnel, business. and administrative experience." Professor Stephens received his master's degree from the University of Illinois and his doctorate from Indiana University.

Dean William T. Going has been with SIU since 1957 and came to us from a teaching position at the University of Alabama, where he also did his undergraduate work. He has been Dean of Instruction since 1958. A great deal of credit for the fine faculty at the Edwardsville Campus goes to Dean Going for his careful screening of candidates. Included in the latest edition of Who's Who. he holds advanced degrees from Duke University and the University of Michigan. His associate dean since July 1960 has been Milton B. Byrd, on leave this year to the University of Michigan where he has a post-doctoral fellowship in college administration. Mr. Byrd holds degrees from Boston University and received his doctorate from the University of Wisconsin. Serving this year as acting associate dean has been Jack Bruce Thomas, associate professor of sociology. Mr. Thomas was on the University of Virginia staff before coming to Southern in 1958.

assistants to the vice president

The enormous work load connected with carrying on the duties of vice president of operations for the Edwardsville Campus complex makes it imperative to have assistants assigned at the three centers. H. Bruce Brubaker is the Vice President's assistant and in charge of the General Office at Alton; Loren Jung fills a similar capacity at East St. Louis. Virgil Seymour is assigned to the Vice President's office in Edwardsville.

The library has often been referred to as the academic heart of a university; this is true at Southern. Operated from administrative offices in Edwardsville, the Alton and East St. Louis libraries have a combined volume total of 77,000 at present; this figure is expected to reach 85.000 by the end of Jnne. 1962, representing an increase of 33 per cent over the previous year. Library facilities also include subscriptions to roughly 1100 periodicals and 30 newspapers, and such audio-visual equipment as records, movies, film strips, movie projectors, tape recorders, microfilm readers, and a book copier. Our library is a depository for both the federal and state governments.

Area Services coordinates the University's publicity program, places students and alumni in jobs, promotes organized alumni activities, encourages community development, and has recently included in its broad service a public administration and metropolitan affairs program

With the help of the Placement Office, last year 125 of the 198 Edwardsville Campus graduates were placed in jobs. David Van Horn, supervisor, looks on as business firm representative interviews prospective employee, Mr. Van Horn is also in charge of student employment; roughly 300 student workers held part-time jobs at both the Alton and East St. Louis centers, and some worked in the central offices in Edwardsville.

At present the Community Development Office for this area is located in East St. Louis but plans call for Coordinator Gene Graves (r.) and his staff to move to Edwardsville.

The Alumni Office at Carbondale keeps up-to-date files on 24,000 SIU graduates and former students and serves as headquarters for the Alumni Association. There are 44 local alumni clubs throughout the 50 states and one was organized this year in Brussels. Belgium. academic

The academic aspect of a university may be considered the mind of that institution; its strength depends largely on its faculty. Our faculty is one to boast about, for each member was carefully chosen. Degrees held by them represent more than 50 well-known institutions of higher learning, and the number holding doctorates is considerably higher than the national average. They are represented in nearly all of the learned societies; many serve as officers on state and national levels.

Mr. John J. Glynn, Business Division head.

The Business Division is designed to prepare the student for a successful performance in the business world, and to acquaint him with business methods and operations. It provides opportunity for him to learn the art of human relations, the importance of integrity and responsibility. Majors in this division include accounting, economics, management, marketing, and business and secretarial education.

The Industrial and Technical Programs were set up in 1956 to serve as the connecting link between the area's industrial needs in education and SII—as the supplier of those needs. That year SIU, with the cooperation of the East Side Manufacturer's Association at Granite City, outlined a program of industrial management courses in an effort to meet the demands of industry to provide employers and employees with the "tools of the trade." In-plant enrollment has almost tripled since 1956. This program is part of the Division of Technical and Adult Education, under the deanship of Ernest J. Simon.

general studies program

The new General Studies program at S1U, to replace the present general requirements for a bachelor's degree, will go into effect with next fall's freshman class.

Designed to broaden the educational base of all SIU students, the program will boost basic degree requirements from some 60 to roughly 90 hours. The new curriculum is being prepared under the direction of a faculty committee responsible directly to President D. W. Morris.

Chairman is H. H. Smith of the Education Division at Edwardsville; executive officers are S. D. Lovell. Social Sciences Division, Edwardsville; and John W. Voigt, professor of botany, Carbondale.

Other Edwardsville Campus members are Melvin Kazeck, Social Sciences Division; Laurence McAneny, Science and Technology Division; John Richardson, Fine Arts Division; and, from the Carbondale Campus, Robert Faner, English department; Willard Klimstra, director of Wildlife Research; and Robert Layer, chairman, economics department.

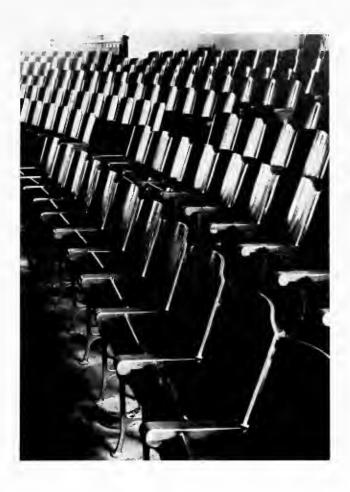

Progressive sequences of courses in the new program are being prepared in the following fields of study: 1) man's physical environment and biological inheritance; 2) man's social inheritance and social responsibilities; 3) man's insights and appreciations; 4) organization and communication of ideas; 5) health and personal development.

The most unique aspect of the program is the emphasis on interdepartmental cooperation. Many required subjects now taught separately will be combined into freshman, sophomore, junior and senior course sequences.

Only the freshman classes will start on this program; students enrolled now will continue under the existing plan.

If the administration is the head of a university and the academic aspect the mind, then the activities are the heart. The active student helps promote school pride and spirit. From first registration to graduation, participation in such activities as dances, intramurals, concerts, speeches, elections and the like gives the student a sense of belonging. These activities give him that something to remember when he talks about the "good ole days" at his alma mater. Indeed, activities are the heart of a university.

To most, the end of the school year signals the beginning of summer vacation, but to seniors it means long-awaited graduation. Graduation is the final climax to a successful college career. After four years of concentrated study, mid-term and final exams, and classroom lectures and discussions, our seniors are ready to begin their life work. Although some will be back in the fall for graduate studies, most have seen the last of college days and the joys and sorrows. disappointments and rewarding experiences which are characteristic of life in college. Whether the decision is to continue with formal education, or to step up to the world of competition, we hope SIU graduates will find happiness and fulfillment.

Oh, how we wish for air-conditioned class-rooms! High temperatures and crowded conditions combine to make summer the most uncomfortable quarter of the year. Then why do so many attend summer classes? For many students, the advantages outshine the disadvantages. Perhaps one needs only a few more credit hours before graduation. Perhaps summer is the only quarter one can attend full time. Perhaps campus employment is appealing or profitable. Whatever the reason, our sympathy is with the person who attends during the warm summer months.

Filling out information on IBM cards, long registration lines, paying fees at the Business Office, a crowded bookstore, green beanies, and bewildered freshmen looking for a certain classroom are part of the early fall scene. Later, after program changes are completed and freshmen no longer need to ask directions, the fall quarter seems almost like every other quarter. New friends are met, old acquaintances renewed and much studying is done for mid-term exams in order to give the year a good beginning. The Muse staff felt outstanding seniors should be recognized in some way, so letters were sent to five faculty members and ten active juniors on each campus, asking them to rank seniors who, in their opinions, had contributed much time and effort to social and governmental activities at SIU, while still maintaining a "C" average or better. Some of those chosen have very high scholastic averages. In a close race, six from each center were elected to be included in Muse Who.

The Alestle, now in its second year serving the three centers of the Edwardsville Campus, operates under a most unusual staff arrangement. In order to get the best coverage of campus news, offices are located at two different centers. This year the office of the editorin-chief is at the East St. Louis center, where F. Beasley Leffew keeps a watchful eye on the staff. In Alton, Associate Editor Don Fritz keeps the copy flowing smoothly to the printer. Supervising the whole operation is Mr. Richard W. Lee, faculty adviser to the weekly publication. Growing steadily since the days of the old ARC, which served only the Alton center, this year the Alestle received a face lifting by returning to a five-column page, taking on a brighter look through better layout and design. Next year's plans call for further expansion.

After receiving a favorable evaluation from the Associated Collegiate Press for our first attempt at a bona fide yearlook, the Muse staff began work on this year's issue with enthusiasm high. Further impetus came from attendance at the national convention of ACP, held at Miami Beach in November. Here your editor and associate editor joined Carbondale and other yearbook staffers from all over the country to pick up many valuable hints for improving yearbooks Problems have reared their ugly heads but have been met headon, and we are grateful for the enrichment which has come out of this editorial experience. Our goal has been to give in the 1962 Muse a real picture of SIU-Edwardsville; we hope we have succeeded in capturing treasured moments that will live for you forever.

Our class will be the largest, to date, to be graduated from the Edwardsville Campus. Nearly 260 students will shake the hand of the President, reach for their diplomas, and walk proudly down the aisle. Some of us will be back in the fall to further our education with a master's degree. Others of us will end our formal education, but will be better prepared to begin homemaking or a professional career. We ean look back on these college years as our happiest years, remembering friends met here, the social events where we had a wonderful time, and our favorite instructors who were interested enough to share their time with us.

Crossing the street is often a problem during heavy-traffic hours.

More than half of our college life has been completed. We have decided on our majors, have passed those general degree requirements, and are earnestly studying in our respective fields. Many friends and acquaintances have been made during our three years at SIU; we have taken part in many enjoyable and worthwhile activities, and we are looking forward to our senior year and receiving our degrees from SIU.

We have completed the first hurdle. We have adjusted to college life and have settled down to at least two more years of serious study. Looking back upon our first year in school, we feel a sense of pride for having successfully made the transition from high school to college. Our role in the growth and development of the Edwardsville Campus can be important; it is up to us to help cultivate this growth and development by providing new student leaders to contime the work that has begun. We have a promising future, but only hard work will insure it.

Students try to find the most relaxing position in their seats to take them through the long class period.

"Let us begin" said John F. Kennedy in his inaugural address. "Let us begin." It is a good motto for college freshmen. We are beginning our lives as adults. The step from adolescence to adulthood is a giant, difficult one. We are away from the high school world where most of the faces we saw were familiar, where teachers reminded us to study, where we were sent to the principal's office for being tardy. No one tells college students what to do because we are expected to know and to be responsible. "Let us begin."

in appreciation

In an endeavor such as that of producing a year-book, there are several persons involved without whom the book would not have been a reality. The two I am most indebted to are Mary Allen, associate editor, and Mildred Arnold, fiscal adviser, I could always depend on Mary for anything I wanted from a ride to the tedious task of completing the senior index. She has been a pleasure to work with and has drawn me closer to the East St. Louis students. Mrs. Arnold freely donated many hours of time to the Muse. One of her main contributions was making sure the staff wasn't hungry. Much of her time was devoted to prodding the staff to meet deadlines and trying to have us attend to technical aspects.

Jack Glynn devoted long hours to the sale of the Muse. Carol Cornwell and Kenneth Junck worked exceptionally hard, so did Sue Walker, Sue Camp. Lucia Laird, Ralpha Echols, Paula Nicolet, Rosalie Kroeger, Janice Bivens, Mary Anne Glynn, Earle Lloyd, 4da Brecht, Kathy Hall, Jim Woods, and Mary Richardson.

Others to whom I am indebted: my art teachers, Mrs. Buddemeyer and Mr. Richardson; Miss Mary M. Brady, chairman of the Journalism Council: the staff at Printing Service in Carbondale, and the Becktold Company of St. Louis, binders of the yearbook.

I certainly cannot fail to acknowledge the work of Charles Cox, University photographer and assistant supervisor, Information Service. The best pictures in the book are those taken by "Charlie." We regret cropping so much of his photographic art, but we wanted to include as many of his pictures as room would allow.

A special thanks should go to all those who supported the Muse. Without the support of faculty and students, a yearbook would not be possible.
